petition to the House of Commons with reference to the constitution of the Legislative Council has been published and may now be criticised in detail. A remarked in a previous article, written when the petition, there is no reason why it should not be signed by all who hold the view that greater effect should be given to local views in the control of the affairs of the Colony even though they think the precise form of relief prayed for is not the best. The petition will at all events open up the whole question and prepare the way for reform of some kind. At least we hope it will, though the usual fate of petitions to the House of Commons is never to be heard effected the arrest of seven men. They were of again. warmest demonstrations of approval. "Francillon" was originally produced in 1887 at the Theatre Francais, Paris, Madame Bartet playing the title role with great success. Madame Bernhardt was the next great actress who interpreted the character, and this she did, with. all her accustomed power and skill. Since then the piece has been before the public almost continuously, and though it has aroused much hostile criticism, it has never failed to be a great attraction, perhaps chiefly because it affords a good subject for discussion and food for thought As one critic rather happily expresses it. M. Alexauder Dumas fils gives ussome most brilliant dialogue but most repulsive doctrine. The question at issue all through is the equality of the sexes, the absolute right of bot to the independent control of their virtue. It is an old old story attired in a pleasing garb, but the author's bitter and scathing satire on existing marriage laws and connubial ties will not awaken very much sympathy in an English andieuce. Francies de Riverolles, the Captain Snow, of the sealing schooner Rotri- heroine, informs her husband that should he noluding that containing the captain, were lost for a cafe, she accepts the attentions of a stranger and sups with him in the next apartment to that in which are her husband and the demi-mondaine The next day she informs net only the faithless one but all her relatives and friends of the successful execution of her threat. Her bosom friend will not believe in her guilt, and so by a clever ruse makes Francil. lon (for by that name is the wife known) confess that in her anger she has been improdent but nothing more. The climax is very cleverly worked out. The husband at first laughs aubelievingly at his wife's confussion, but his incredulity is shaken somewhat by the production of certain tangible bits of evidence—such as tickets. bills, &c. - which lend a semblance of truth to be story. Jealousy succeds disbelief, and a violent. some terminates in a lawyer being sent for to in stantly institute divorce proceedings. A clerk her escapade, and eventually the wife is surprised into admitting that the worst suggestion of har story is false, and amid the usual happy felicita. tions the curtain falls, and doubt and jealousy are dispelled. Surface Shaft No. 2 - Was commerced in the early part of the month to go down and communicate with the western stopes. These shafts are of great advantage for sending down timber and for mullocking up these stopes (after the mariz has been taken away) which in places are over 400 feet wide. The guartz is also drawn up through these shorts and delivered on apriace at same rates as paid from these stopes delivered at bottom of shaft. Sunk in quartz the whole depth with the exception of 10 feet, and at a spin of 70 to t communicated with stopes No. 2 Trial Shaft.—We had to suspend operations in the early part of the month owing to the bid ventilation. We could not keep lights ba un g Our out all from this point was about 20 tons, not yet milled. No. 3 Shaft. - Was commenced 100 feet further south to out the same run of quartz as in

No. 2 shaft, and to connect with and ventilate same. We have struck leaders in sinking. Depth of shaft 60 ft. 6 in. West Drive -- Was driven 14 feet, and the prospects are the same as last reported. South Drive. Has been extended 19 feet 6 in., and a change of ground has been met with and I think we are near the lode. We have a ttle quartz in the face (carrying a little free gold), but not taking a definite course. I will extend the drive a little further, and if nothing is met with will drive on the course of the Stopes East and Intermediate Section. -- Work will be left as reserves for the present-West and New Stopes .- Are producing large quantities of average stone. Estimated quantity of quartz raised during the month -1.045 tons. LONDON, 5th April Sir Charles Dilke presided to day at a meating of the members of the Colonial party of the House of Commons. Amoun those present was Hugh M. Nelson, Prime Minister of Quessland. He made a spaceh dealing with the question of a Pacific cable, neging that nothing would bind the empire closer together than the cable to Australia. He also maintained that the mail route to Anstralia, by way of Canada, ought to be given imperial support. A long letter was received from a gentleman who for litty years has been a resident of Samoa. The writer declares that the triple control of the Samoan Islands has failed and arges the annexation of the group by Great British. After debating the question, the meeting resolved that in view of the importance of the British interests in Samoa, the imperial Government should at an early moment consider the serious situation Washington, 6th April.
